Chapman Florida Home Described

(From "Little Visits to St. Petersburg Homes" by Lillian Blackstone in the St. Petersburg Times, Jan. 3)

Not only is Mrs. W. R. Chapman's winter residence at 2100 First Street north attractive because of its substantiality and architecture but also because of the landscape planting which adds to its beauty.

For instance, all around the house in the stretch of grass between street and sidewalk are alternate plantings of Washingtonian palms and red hibiscus. Close to the foundations of the house are crotons and poinsettias, and in the rear of the home, back of the garage and chauffeur's quarters are Australian pines with border of hibiscus. There are also other palm trees and tropical plantings, including citrus trees with enough oranges, grapefruit, lemons, kumquats and calamondins to supply Mrs. Chapman and her household.

When looking for a permanent residence last spring, Mrs. Chapman knew her search was ended when she found this house. It is made of hollow tile stucco inside and out, the exterior coloring of tan and green blending with the green tile roof and contrasting pleasantly with the red brick steps and the tile sidewalks leading to the front and side porches. There is a splendid ventilating system, the house is termite proof and an oil plant heater has been installed with radiators in every room.

Roomy and Comfortable

The home is large, comfortable and roomy. The front verandah facing First street north, leads into a vestibule, Spanish style, and from this vestibule one can enter sun parlor or living room. The side verandah facing Twenty-first Avenue north, looks like a front porch, and is one of the most lived-in parts of the entire home. There is a tile floor, rug covering and wicker furniture. It is a pleasant place in which to be—but then, too, so is the other verandah as well as the rooms which have many windows to let in fresh air and sunshine.

The ceiling of the living room is 12 feet, 3 inches high and has exposed rafters of the same finished woodwork found throughout the home. The ceiling of the dining room, opening from the living room through an arched doorway, is 9 feet, 4 inches high.

One of the most pleasant features of the living room is the tapestry brick fireplace extending to the ceiling. An inset above the mantelpiece shows one of the knights of the Round Table.

There are seven rooms in the house, including the living room, sun parlor, dining room, three bedrooms, bath and kitchen. The bedrooms are airy and attractive, and with a color scheme respectively of tan and blue, green and white, and pink and white. In the other rooms the tan shade predominates, since the walls are all of this color. Woodwork is finished in a tone of green.

Active in Music Circles

Mrs. Chapman, who has been coming to St. Petersburg for three seasons with her daughter, Miss Nellie B. Chapman, is well known throughout the north—particularly in the music circles of New York where she was president of the Rubinstein Club for 26 years. Because of her musical affiliations she was recently named an honorary member of the local Carreno club.

Mrs. Chapman was the wife of William Rogers Chapman, who died in Palm Beach two winters ago. He was a leading musician in this country, conducting the Rubinstein Club for 48 years and the famous Malos festivals for 30 years. Mrs. Chapman is writing a biography of her husband, which the entire music world awaits.

LYNN GENERAL SUPERVISOR

It was announced last week that William Lynn of Rumford Center was promoted to general supervisor of highways in this section, effective Jan. 1. Mr. Lynn has been supervisor of highways for several years.

At the same time the appointment of Ernest Bennett of Wilson's Mills as supervisor was made public. He is in charge of state roads in 42 towns.

Held For Superior Court

Joseph T. Bryant of South Woodstock, charged with manslaughter, is held in $5000 bail for appearance at the March term of Superior Court. Bryant is said to be driver of a truck which left the road near West Paris on Tuesday night, Jan. 12, causing the death of Howard L. McKee of that place.

Cotton—Blake

Miss Irene Blake and Ray E. Cotton, Jr., were married January 16, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cotton, Mechanic Falls. Mr. Cotton is a brother of the groom. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Lamb of the Baptist Church. The single ring service was used.

The bride's gown was blue boucle with matching accessories. Following the ceremony an informal reception was held and a buffet lunch was served with 20 persons present. The bride cut the wedding cake made by the groom's sister-in-law, Mrs. Albert Cotton. Mrs. Albert Cotton and Miss Lyndall Cotton were in charge of the refreshments. Miss Ada Cotton, the groom's sister, was in charge of the guest book.

Those attending were: John Cotton, Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Cotton, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cotton and daughter Marguerite, Miss Ada Cotton, Miss Lyndall Cotton, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Blake, Miss Florence Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Cole, Erwin M. Royal, Edward Withers, Martin Strout, Edward Hall.

Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Cotton left for a short trip to parts unknown. On their return they have a furnished apartment awaiting them.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Blake of Bethel. She has always resided in Bethel. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Cotton of Mechanic Falls. He is employed in the Mechanic Falls paper mill.

Conservation Payments Total $241,356, January 7

Payments to 5,383 Maine farmers who participated in the 1936 agricultural conservation program had reached a total of $241,356.79 on January 7, according to the disbursing office, Washington, D. C. Applications for a total of $268,001.20, including those already paid, had been received from Maine on that date. The average amount of checks mailed was $45.10.

Maine was fourth among the nine states of the triple A's Northeast region, led by New York, Pennsylvania in the region were $4,481,030.39 on January 7.

Maine officials expressed satisfaction in the small number of suspended applications. Only 76 applications from Maine, or 1.25% were of the AAA pending revision or correction held by the examining section. Pennsylvania had the lowest percentage suspended among the Northeastern states, and Maine was second.

Townsend Club Holds Election

The regular meeting of Bethel Townsend Club was held at the Methodist Church Sunday, Jan. 17. The following officers were elected: President—Dan Spearin; Vice-Pres.—Erwin Hutchinson; Treasurer—Alanson Tyler; Secretary—Frank Hunt; Entertainment Committee—Bernice Spearin, Sadie King, Lillian Abbott, Mary Clark.

The meeting was opened with singing America and saluting the beautiful flag which was presented by the Club by Mrs. Lillian Abbott and Miss Mabel Stanley. We wish to thank our past officers for their efficiency in the past year, also the members who have worked with untiring effort to put our Club where it stands today.

The meeting closed with singing the song adapted to the Club by Mrs. Lillian Abbott. Tune, Battle Hymn of the Republic.

The Townsends are marching, they are marching right along. They are marching to the White House, with many a million strong. They are marching on to victory, this victory to win, For truth is marching on.

Chorus—
Glory, glory, hallelujah! Glory, glory, hallelujah! Glory, glory, hallelujah! For truth is marching on.

Maine has 1,223 manufacturing establishments with 69,764 employees. Acadia National Park, in Maine, is the only coastal park in the federal system.

Maine factories produce 170,000,000 toothpicks every day. A cord of sound birch yields 9,000,000. Eastport, Maine, is the most easterly city in the United States. It has a tidal rise and fall of 24 feet.

"Nation's Fair" Their Objective

Mrs. Vincent Astor Winthrop W. Aldrich

NEW YORK (Special)—Mrs. Vincent Astor society leader and civic worker, has been appointed Chairman of a National Women's Advisory Committee for the New York World's Fair of 1939. Winthrop W. Aldrich, Chairman of the Chase National Bank, is heading the men's National Committee. Together they will enlist more than 10,000 committee workers in a nationwide campaign to arouse interest in and secure support for the New York Fair. Aldrich, President of the State Chamber of Commerce, announced that every state will be brought into active participation in the New York Fair making it truly national.

REGINALD ROBINSON

Reginald Robinson passed away Tuesday evening at the St. Louis Hospital, Berlin, where he had been ill since Sunday, Jan. 10. He was born in Bethel, Nov. 25, 1901, the son of Elias and Grace Sanborn Robinson, and was educated in the schools of Bethel and at Gould Academy.

He married Miss Christine Little of Portland and one son, Keith, was born to them. Besides his wife and son, he is survived by his father, Elias Robinson, and brother, Julius Robinson, both of Bethel; and sister, Miss Hilda Robinson, of Randolph, Mass.

He was employed at the Skillington mill.

Funeral services will be held at Greenleaf's funeral rooms at 2 p. m., Friday, Rev. H. T. Wallace officiating. Interment will be at West Bethel.

Gould Wins One: Drops the Next

GOULD UPSETS OXFORD 27-19

The Gould Academy quintet played its finest basketball of the year to defeat Oxford's Small School Champions here last Friday to the tune of 27-19. The visitors opened up with the first basket but Gould came right back to score a basket and a few moments later to score again to assume a lead which they held throughout the entire game but which at times was threatened by Oxford rallies. The closest of these rallies came late in the third period when Oxford scored twice from the field and once from the foul line to bring the score to 14-16 against them.

In the final chapter Gould put on the pressure to score 10 points while the visitors scored five. With about two minutes to play the Gould team with an eight point lead played a beautiful stalling game, which kept the ball from Oxford hands for most of the last two minutes of the game.

In the preliminary game the Gould Second team played poor basketball and nastrally too a 39-25 beating from Woodstock High of Bryant Pond. The score by periods in this game was as follows:

GOULD	5	10	19	25
WOODSTOCK	12	21	31	39

OXFORD (19)

GOULD SLUMPS IN FINAL PERIOD

After playing big league ball as beautiful as one could expect to see on any court for the first half, Gould Academy finally succumbed to a sensational South Paris rally on the Paris floor Wednesday evening.

Gould started the game by going into an early lead which they held to the half way mark which ended Gould 13 South Paris 11. During these periods the Gould team put up the smartest basketball and the finest passing game seen at South Paris this year. In the last half however the superior power, speed and size of the victors began to take its toll. The game however was well played through the third period with South Paris out front 24-18. It was in the final stanza that the Paris quintet staged their sensational rally which netted them 14 points to Gould's 4 for a final score of 38-22 which does not indicate in the least the fine game that was played.

The early exceptionally fast pace set in the game seemed to take everything the Gould Midgets could give and they had nothing in reserve to stem the thro of the final rally.

In the preliminary game the Goulds lost a rough but closely contested game by a 22-24 margin.

MAINE MEETING PLACE

A bustle of feverish activity will envelop historic Mechanics Hall in Boston this week as preparations go forward for one of the most popular exhibitions of the present day—the annual Sportsmen's Show.

This show which opens on January 30 and runs through February 6 will, if past experience is any indication, draw upwards of 200,000 outdoor hungry enthusiasts who will come to view the various events, wander around the almost countless exhibits, and in many cases, decide where they are going to spend their summer's vacation.

Following the Boston Show, the exhibits will move almost en masse into New York for a similar showing there from February 18 to February 27. From there they will go to Hartford for a resumption of activities March 4-11. Crowds of 250,000 at New York and 100,000 at Hartford are expected.

If you are by any chance planning to be in any of these cities on the above mentioned dates, you will enjoy going to the Sportsmen's Show.

It is almost impossible to describe one. Picture if you can a showing of the best resources and facilities of all the vacation lands of the north and east concentrated in one hall. Add to these an almost inexhaustible number of exhibits featuring everything and anything connected with the out-of-doors.

Top all this off with a series of contests and exhibitions staged in a tank as big as a small pond placed in the middle of the huge hall and participated in by the country's outstanding performers in the realm of outdoor sports and you may get some small idea of what it is all about.

The hold that these shows have on their metropolitan patrons is something to conjure with. In fair weather and foul, in snow, rain, or sleet the "city folk" storm the halls night after night to get into a little closer touch with Mother Nature as portrayed by the various exhibits.

For the past several years the Inland Fish and Game Department in co-operation with the Maine Development Commission has sponsored a representative and truly beautiful exhibit at these shows. It is an exhibit that is presented only after months of thought and care. Invariably it attracts show patrons as surely as a cookie-jar attracts a youngster.

In attendance at the booth at all times are representatives of the two departments named. It is their duties to answer innumerable questions day after day and to give out thousands upon thousands of pieces of literature.

The Maine Development Commission considers these shows an admirable advertising and publicizing media. Those who attend are not curiosity seekers but are a concentration of people keenly interested in what we have to sell—recreation.

It is of course impossible to guess how many of these show patrons are sold on the idea of coming to Maine. It is safe to say, however, that they number many thousands. They come here not only to fish and hunt but to visit the seashore, the forests, the lakes and the mountains.

In relation to the amount of good these shows accomplish, the amount of money spent for the Maine exhibit is small indeed. Those who are in attendance at the exhibit find it a nerve-racking, if pleasant, job

They answer so many thousands of questions that they lose count after the first couple of hours. They are repaid, however, in their knowledge that they are spreading the gospel of this, the greatest of vacation lands.

In addition to the official Maine exhibit, a number of individual camp, hotel, and resort owners of this state have exhibits of their own.

At the Maine exhibit, of course, no one section of the state can be recommended by the attendants over another section.

The individual exhibits, however, can definitely go after clientele for their own interests.

For the benefit of those who are unable to have an exhibit at the show the Maine booth attendants will be pleased to pass out any literature that is sent to any of these cities addressed "Maine Exhibit," Mechanics Building, Boston or Palace, New York or State Armory, Hartford.

This literature will be distributed impartially. If, for instance, your place of business is in Aroostook County and inquiries are received for that section of the state, your literature will receive equal rank with all other literature from that section.

If no preference is shown, your literature with that from the Lakes Section, the coast and all other regions will be handed out impartially so that the potential patron can make his own choice.

South Woodstock

Mrs. Florence Benson and Mrs. Zella Silver returned to their work at Penley's mill at West Paris on Monday morning for an indefinite time.

George Davis and son Gerald spent Sunday at Errol, N. H., with Guyson Davis.

The Willing Workers were very pleasantly entertained on Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 13, at the home of Cora Perham assisted by Mrs. Florence Perham. As this was the annual meeting a special business meeting was held. The same officers as last year were re-elected:

President—Florence Perham
Vice President—Velma Davis
Secretary—Lila Dean
Treasurer—Annie Davis
Time and Place—Jesse Andrews
Quilt Committee—Annie D. Davis and Elizabeth Russ
Press Correspondent—Mrs. Jessie Abbott

Sick Committee—Jesse Andrews
Dainty refreshments of sandwiches, cookies, cream cakes, and coffee were served. The next meeting will be Wednesday, Jan. 27th. This will be an all day meeting. A covered dish dinner will be served at noon. We will be guests of Mrs. Jesse Andrews at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Andrews, A. M. Andrews and Mrs. Angie Robbins were at Mechanic Falls on Tuesday and called on Mrs. Robbins daughter, Mrs. Lester Pence and baby. They found the baby much improved in health and gaining nicely.

South Woodstock friends of Mrs. Fannie Cummings of West Paris will be glad to learn that she was able to take a short auto ride on Sunday, the first since her operation at the Rumford Hospital, December 1st.

Walter Littlehale can call himself champion hand ice cutter for these parts we feel sure. One day last week he cut and pulled from the water 121 cakes. He has already cut for the season about 1000 cakes, and he still has more people waiting for him to cut out for them.

4-H CLUB NEWS

Easing the Burden of Bureaucracy

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

As every farmer, or business-man, or housewife knows, duplication of effort is one of the most deadly foes
of efficiency and economy.

This is true in government, as well as on the farm, at the office or in the kitchen.

That probably explains why the nation has greeted with approval a recent promise from Washington to reorganize and curtail the confused mass of federal bureaus, boards or commissions which now sprawl over both the geographic and economic maps of America.

Expansion of the many government-supervised agencies which increasingly interfere with the average citizen's life and activities is no new phenomenon of our government. It has been under way for years, regardless of which political party was in control.

Not long it has been a federal falling alone. State and local governments have succumbed to the same urge for increased authority—a trend which does much to explain our swollen public debt, Bureaucracy
and High Cost of Government grow
in unison.

This is by no means the first promise to the American people that Bureaucracy's costly confusion of overlapping political jobs and activities—with their enormous leakage of public funds—would be fitted into a logical and efficient pattern.
America has received many earlier pledges to the same effect, while bureaus and commissions continued to multiply. But somehow those pledges failed to materialize. This time the workers and carriers of America will hope the promises hold good.

They hope so for two reasons:
first, because the heavy costs of Bureaucracy—however disguised—
come eventually out of the workers'
pockets, and, second, because Bureaucracy itself—however praised by holders of the political job it perpetuates—still stands as a towering barrier across the Road to Recovery which all America is now striving to travel.

The American people didn't need a horde of Bureaucratic jobholders
to help them conquer a continent.
And they neither need nor seek the costly interference of so great a number in solving their problems
today.

THE COMMUNISTIC DILEMMA

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Dinner
Falls, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual, National and International Problems
Inseparable from Local Welfare

This is the time when the professional forecasters swing into action—and the business and financial magazines have all come out with oversized "Review and Forecast" issues. Generally speaking, the commentators and the magazines agree in their guesses as to the course of future events, namely that business is getting better, the public's power to consume is gradually approaching industry's power to produce, the national income is on the rise (though the rise is being offset to a considerable extent by rises in commodity prices) and wages and dividends are reflecting the improvement. But there is at least one big fly in the ointment—
labor troubles, existing and prospective.

In the words of the conservative Annalist, "The three largest manufacturing industries enter the new year with heavy unfilled orders.
Ordinarily such a situation would virtually guarantee a satisfactory
state of business, even though a few important industries remained depressed. But the expected outbreak of labor disturbances is becoming serious enough to constitute a threat to general business stability."

Labor is split wide open today.
On the one side is the A. F. of L., with its faith in craft unions. On the other is John L. Lewis, advocate of one big industrial union and direct action. Some think that Mr.
Lewis' ambition is to build up a labor political party, such as exists in France and England. Whether that is true or not, Mr. Lewis seems intent on bringing the old closed-shop vs. open-shop issue to a head.
The aim of the United Mine Workers (Mr. Lewis' union, which is supported by a number of other unions) is to unionize steel, automotive and the open-shop.
This is about as difficult a job as could be imagined and, whatever side wins, must result in controversy often continuing over a period of years. So in the meantime Mr.
Lewis has centered his attack on a big industry which he and most unprejudiced observers regard as being highly vulnerable. That is the automobile industry.

Reason for motor's vulnerability
is that it is dependent for existence
on other scattered industries—
glass makers, accessory makers,
etc. These related industries, though big when all units within them are considered, are fatally broken up into small, decentralized units. In other words, it is sometimes possible to tie up a big automobile manufacturer by bringing about a strike in some relatively small factory which makes, for example, glass.

Mr. Lewis has centered his current attack on General Motors, it being a representative big car maker. Demands are plain and unequivocal—and heading them all is the demand for a 100% closed shop.
General Motors, through its president, Alfred Sloan, has replied that it cannot countenance this,
that it will dicker with unions or any other employee representatives,
but that it will not demand that a man belong to any organization before it gives him a job. That is, it stands firmly for the open shop.

The feeling is growing that if the menace to stability caused by labor troubles is to be eliminated with fairness to both sides, the Federal government must do a great deal more than it has in the past. There is strong sentiment in the West-where a seamen's strike has kept all Pacific Coast shipping tied up for nearly three months—in favor of the President taking a hand,
something he has formerly refused to do. Mediation by the parties involved has got nowhere, and there is little reason for believing that it will get anywhere in the future.
As a result, the "labor question"
will undoubtedly appear as an issue in the current Congress, and will be thoroughly thrashed out.

The President's address to the Congress contained little that was specific. It dealt mainly with generalities as to hopes and plans. His past addresses to the legislative branch have also followed that pattern.

Consequently, there was not much new in the speech with the single exception of his reference to the Supreme Court.

The President said, by intimation that he felt the Court should follow the lead of Congress and "liberal-ize" its attitude toward New Deal legislation. He said that this would obviate passing a new Constitutional Amendment to make possible laws the High Court has held unconstitutional. The President's declaration has stirred up a hornet's nest of debate. Sentiment runs all the way from unqualified acceptance of his views to the opinion that he is breaking down the democratic system. Cooler heads, looking at the actualities, feel that Mr.
Roosevelt may run into trouble in his own camp.

That is, a number of Democratic leaders—notably those from the South—are known to openly favor submitting a Constitutional Amendment to the people instead of expecting the Court to change its interpretation of the Constitution.
Majority leader Robinson and Speaker Rankin belong to this group.

How Koreans Defeat Ghosts
All Korean mothers used to instruct their children in the way to go on encountering a tokab:
"Draw yourself up," they said, "and look down at the ghost, which will become smaller and smaller and at last dwindle away. Never ever look up, or it will tower like a giant—you cannot compete with it and you are lost." — Asia Mag.

Washington Snapshots by JAMES PRESTON

Predictions in politics have left many a so-called political expert far out on a limb and wishing he had never gone into the forecasting business. But events here in the Nation's Capital have moved fast enough in the past few weeks to make one prediction seem fairly safe. It is, that during the coming months many people will be playing the thoroughly Americanized game of "putting 'em on the spot."
The Supreme Court is to be the target. Unless the guesses of the corps of Washington newspaper men are all wrong, one of the heaviest propaganda campaigns in the history of the country is already under way
looking toward proving to the people that the Supreme Court is the root of all our economic evils.

If the inside whispers which are being passed around are correct—
and no one is denying them—there have been repeated attempts during the last year to write a Constitutional amendment under which authority over farmers, manufacturers, labor—and pants pressers—can be centralized in the Federal government, instead of the states.
Some of the more notable of the lawyers who have bedecked themselves in recent years as constitutional authorities are reported to have tried their hands. But the whispers are that the halfway ground which is necessary to get
state ratification of the amendment cannot be found. It is the whole hog or nothing. Either state lines are almost completely obliterated and state capitals left hollow shells in the conduct of local affairs, or they must continue to retain their authority within their state borders.

If a Constitutional amendment could not be written how were those who seek the ends which could be attained by such an amendment to go forward. The Supreme Court, it is reasoned, as the traditional interpreter of the nation's laws and the protector of state lines stood in the way. Therefore, it must be removed by one of several methods. One, some of the justices will pass along in the natural course of events and appoi-

ments can be made to the bench
which will change the majority opinions. This is a slow process.
second, the size of the court can be increased by Congress, with enough so-called liberals added to change the majority. Three, the powers of the court to pass upon Federal laws can be clipped. Fourth such terrific pressure can be put upon the court that some members might be prevailed upon to render opinions different from their basic views.

All of these latter courses are speedier roads to an end, but public opinion stands in the way. There is no indication from the country that it would view changes in the status of the three-way governmental setup—judicial, legislative and administrative—as playing the game fairly. So the answer is to change that public opinion. There is every indication that such is to be the line of attack in the next few months.

Donald R. Richberg, who did much of the drafting of the unconstitutional NRA act and who was overruled by a unanimous Supreme Court when he sought to defend it before the court, opened the barrage in Chicago several weeks ago when he announced that the way to his ends were not to amend the Constitution "but to amend the opinions of the Supreme Court."
Since then from one source after another the attacks upon the Supreme Court before the public have swayed ahead. The attempts will be made to show to every person who has less than $2,500 a year income that he would have more if it were not for the unsympathetic—but non-political—Supreme Court.

The propaganda deluge will reach its crest when and if the Court declares unconstitutional the Wagner
Labor Act and the Social Security Act as invasions of state authority over its citizens.

American farmers benefit by at least $66,000,000 a year because of the breeding and introduction of disease-resistant varieties of indian corn crops, according to a conservative estimate.

The surest and most practical method of controlling woodchucks, or ground hogs, is to gas the animals in their burrows with carbon disulphide or calcium cyanide.
Automobile exhaust gas is practical
if the burrows are few.

Mr. Chamberlin was born in Waterville on June 29, 1900. His education was acquired in the schools of Waterville and Monmouth and at Phillips Exeter Academy where he took a special course.

In 1918 he became superintendent of the angle iron department of the Texas Steamship Company at Bath. Four years later he opened a general store at Winthrop and the following year made extensive additions to the business. He served that town as tax collector and postmaster.

Losing his business there by fire in the spring of 1933, he came to Bethel the following August, buying the fruit store of David Fieldman. In this location he now carries a varied stock of fruits, confectionery, tobacco and smokers' supplies, and has added a line of newspapers and magazines.

In 1933 he married Miss Grace L. Foster of Winthrop, chief operator of the Lewiston, Green and Monmouth Telephone Co. In 1934 they purchased the Aldana Brook place on Philbrook Avenue, where they now live.

How Mushrooms Are Grown

Mushrooms are grown in what is called compost, a product of fer-tilizer from the stable. The fertilizer first should be gathered and piled into oblong heaps to permit easy working. As this mixture ferments, its temperature lifts to some 140-150 degrees F. It is left in these stacks for about three weeks and, in that time, should be forked over at least twice. A good rich loam also may be mixed with it to help hold the heat. At the end of the three week period the compost is ready for use. Los Angeles Times.

How Edison Became Deaf

In 1862 Thomas A. Edison published a weekly newspaper, using a freight car for an office, and also as a laboratory for electrical experiments. One day a bottle containing phosphorus fell from a shelf broke on the floor, and set fire to the car, and the conductor put the boy and belongings off the train and boxed his ears so soundly that it is said to have caused the deafness that afflicted him in later years.

Old Lady: "I wouldn't like to see that, my little just gave you, make a man."

Boy: "Try as you darn her: 'Yes, but he is a tall.'" Teacher: "What is a very like that, my little just gave you, make a comet?"

There are two items that will show greater returns for investment. In comfort and fact say, ing, than anything we know of One is insula- tion board and the other is storm windows.

Just this morning we took about 2000 sq. ft. of 'Telotex' up to Ralph Burris' house at West Bethel.

How romantically! "Does the moon affect the life?"

He romantically: "The foot of Grafton?"

"No, only the golfed." Notch

Teacher: "What is a very like that, my little just gave you, make a comet?"

Tommy: "A star with a long tail." Teacher: "Very good."

Tommy: "Mickey Mouse." Teacher: "You've got something there!"

Teacher: "It was first used by a contractor. He said it to a man on whose house he had just finished putting a Mule-Hide Roof."

Mistress (to new maid): "Now, Norah, when you walk on the stairs, please don't spill anything!"

Norah: "No, Ma'am, I won't say a word."

Ten years ago 18 criminals were brought to a small and neglected estate near Moscow, says a Moscow United Press correspondent.

At that time peasants of an adjoining village appealed to the central executive committee to remove this "nest of cut-throats" from the region.

The peasants were reassured, but the "nest" remained and not a guard was posted.

The young criminal continued to live on the estate and formed a labor commune. Felix Dzerzhsky, upon whose initiative the commune was organized, aimed to fight criminality by re-education through work.

During the ten years of the commune's existence, the number of its members grew from 18 to 3,100 men and women. It developed from a few small shops until now a knitting mill and a large boot factory are operating.

As a principle, each member of the commune must remain there for three years. However, an overwhelming majority remain indefinitely. Many of them, former criminals and vagabonds, now work in the various Soviet towns as skilled technicians.

Re-education of the criminal is an extremely complicated task. The entire educational work is based upon the principles of full confidence (open doors), labor, and self-management. Open doors have kept criminals there as no lock would have done.

Old Lady: "I wouldn't like to see that, my little just gave you, make a man."

Boy: "Try as you darn her: 'Yes, but he is a tall.'" Teacher: "What is a very like that, my little just gave you, make a comet?"

There are two items that will show greater returns for investment. In comfort and fact say, ing, than anything we know of One is insula- tion board and the other is storm windows.

Just this morning we took about 2000 sq. ft. of 'Telotex' up to Ralph Burris' house at West Bethel.

How romantically! "Does the moon affect the life?"

He romantically: "The foot of Grafton?"

"No, only the golfed." Notch

Teacher: "What is a very like that, my little just gave you, make a comet?"

Tommy: "A star with a long tail." Teacher: "Very good."

Tommy: "Mickey Mouse." Teacher: "You've got something there!"

Teacher: "It was first used by a contractor. He said it to a man on whose house he had just finished putting a Mule-Hide Roof."

Mistress (to new maid): "Now, Norah, when you walk on the stairs, please don't spill anything!"

Norah: "No, Ma'am, I won't say a word."

IT'S NOT ALL LAUGHTER FOR THE FUNNY MEN

Charles Butterworth, star of the Fred Astaire production, is a real practice of comedy as he goes about his business. The one who is to be a comedian.

Jack Benny, leader in the parade of laugh makers, has a pretty dismal time as he sits between rehearsals for his show with Mary Livingstone, Don Wilson, Kenny Baker and the Phil Harris orchestra in the NBC-Hollywood studios.

Fred Allen in a mood more characteristic than the happy one you find him in each Wednesday night. He begins work on his scripts immediately after his first broadcast and has the idea for next week's sketch before he does his midnight show for the West Coast.

All play and no work make a comedian a pretty dull boy, says Ed Wynn, whose new Saturday night program is delighting thousands. He is shown here as he makes a last-minute joke substitution in his script before going on the air with Graham MacNamee and Don Voorhees' orchestra.

A most unusual shot in this of Stoopnagle and Budd in a serious conversation with the man who signs the checks for their Sunday broadcasts. Left to right: Stoopnagle; Harry Von Zell, announcer; sponsor Lawton Campbell, and Budd. It's all about a joke, too.

Layman's Sunday will be observed at the Universalist Church, Sunday morning, with the following order of service: Voluntary, Mrs. Farr; Responsive Reading, Ralph Abbott; Scripture Reading, Stanley Q. Perham; Prayer, Reynold E. Chase; Sorrow, Glenn R. McIntire; Solo, Walter L. Inman; Men's Choir.

The annual Parish Meeting of the First Universalist Church will be held Friday evening at the church. Supper will be served in Good Will Hall at six o'clock. It is hoped that a good number of members, their families and friends will attend. Those not solicited kindly bring pastry.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett White of Bath were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Inman. Miss Elizabeth Holman accompanied Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Stone, Clarence and Myrtle Emery on their Washington trip, leaving Saturday morning.

Chester Wheeler has been spending a few days with his wife here on his return from the C. M. G. Hospital, Lewiston, before returning to his home in Bethel. Miss Esther Wheeler is with her mother during Mrs. Holman's absence.

Mrs. John Ross went to Portland, Monday to be with her daughter, Miss Lydia Ross, R. N., who underwent an operation for appendicitis. Marshall Briggs is at the Community Hospital, Rumford, for observation and possibly surgery.

Her: "Could you marry a man who spends all he makes?" She: "No, but I could love him while it lasted."—Exchange.

Experiments show that fertilizer is most effective on potatoes when applied at planting time in a band on each side and slightly below the seed piece.

IN MEMORY OF

MRS. FLORICE JOHNSON

She has stepped across the threshold To that fairer, brighter home, Leaving her beloved companion To finish life's course alone.

And her loving sons and daughters Thought to men and women grown, Long will mourn that gentle presence That could make a house a home.

And the friends who knew and loved her Sadly miss her words of cheer, Earth is indeed a sadder place, Since she is no longer here.

But we know that she is happy With the dear ones gone before, And she'll meet us with a welcome When we reach the other shore.

Though on earth we met but seldom I will treasure each friendly glance, Till again we stand together As we stood by those graves in France.

—Bertha M. Mundt.

Brighten Homemakers Workroom With Paint

Let the exposure of your help in selecting a color that will make the kitchen alive, advises Miss Ann Extension home manager, calling in our neighbor state Hampshire.

If your kitchen has a exposure, warm colors such as peach, or yellow will both and warm the room. For that faces south, the cool blue, green, grey, or light make the room more attractive. Whatever color selected let it be a tint rather than a shade. For, points out Miss Extension, some shades of blue, green, tan absorb as much as 88 light that comes into the room. A well-lighted kitchen is to the Homemaker.

Nothing, she adds, will cheer in the kitchen than well planned color scheme person who will enjoy it. Homemaker who spends the eat portion of her work there.

Bright colored pots and available for, moderate price, their bit to making their more attractive. Beware much form and color that allow the enjoyment of part. Warm grey tones and areas of bright color are if there is plenty of light in the kitchen. Remember that similar the keynote of success in

Brighten Homemakers' Workroom With Paint

Let the exposure of your kitchen help in selecting a color scheme that will make the kitchen attractive, advises Miss Ann F. Beggs, Extension home management specialist in our neighbor state of New Hampshire.

If your kitchen has a northern exposure, warm colors such as tan, peach, or yellow will both brighten and warm the room. For a kitchen that faces south, the cool colors of all green, grey, or light blue will make the room more attractive and comfortable. Whatever color is selected let it be a tint rather than a shade. For points out Miss Beggs, some shades of blue, green, and tan absorb as much as 88% of the light that comes into the room, and a well-lighted kitchen is essential to the homemaker.

Nothing, she adds, will add more cheer in the kitchen than a bright well planned color scheme, and the person who will enjoy it most is the homemaker who spends the greatest portion of her working day there.

Bright colored pots and pans now available for moderate prices add their bit to making the kitchen more attractive. Beware of too much form and color that doesn't allow the enjoyment of any one part. Warm grey tones with small areas of bright color are attractive if there is plenty of light in the kitchen. Remember that simplicity is the keynote of success in color.

CITIZEN OFFICE Bethel, Maine

There used to be a song about keeping the home fires burning. It was popular in the days when that wasn't much of a job. But it comes to our mind as we think of some of the battles that have been fought in the last four or five years.

Particularly does it apply to small town business institutions. We wonder how many persons have ever given consideration to the reasons why BETHEL is still a good town. What has kept it going, maintained good churches and schools, preserved it as a good place in which to live.

Of course the business places and professional persons, who have weathered the storm, have not done it all. But they have led the scrap against adverse conditions.

They have extended credit. When credit meant something. They have paid taxes when they were losing money, so that we might continue to have good schools, a clean and orderly town.

They have bought new merchandise for their shelves and kept up to date, when they were unable to collect much of the money due them for merchandise that had already gone out.

Many of these business and professional people would have been in better financial condition today if they had shut their doors when the trouble started. But they had a pride in their reputation, a loyalty to their community, an obligation to customers who had patronized them for years.

Today, as the future begins to look brighter, all of us who live in the community should remember who has kept the home fires burning. It's a fine thing to overcome that weakness, to be grateful and to show our appreciation.

French Digging Dugouts

Find Relics of 400-1800

Far below the ground on the island in the Seine from which rise the graceful towers of Notre Dame, laborers have been digging for some time, and are finding reminders of other wars, of long forgotten invasions, of harrowing sieges and revolutions nearly two thousand years into the past, reports a Paris United Press writer.

In the courtyard of the somber Republican Guard barracks on the Ile de la Cité laborers have been excavating for a huge shelter against air bombardment. Archaeologists were called in when the workmen came upon ruins showing that this was not the first time Paris had been called on to protect itself.

Walls and columns of an ancient chapel and a church were discovered. Searchers revealed ruins varying in date from the Fourth century to the French revolution, and turned up human remains.

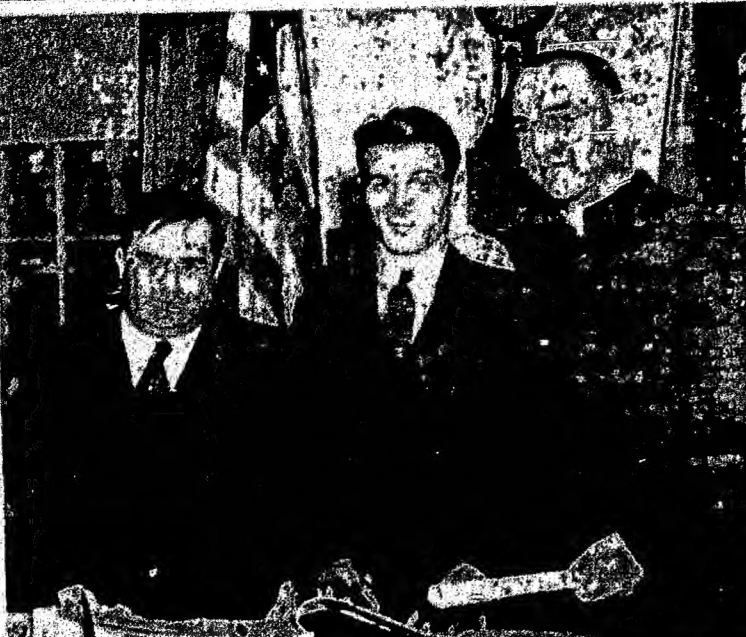

Archaeologists are confident that they will find another section of the original wall of the ancient Gallic city of Lutetia, and thus place together ruins recalling the first attacks by barbarians from the north and east, the days when St. Genevieve saved the small mud hut city from the Huns, and the epoch when Clovis made it his capital. They have found structures dating to the Fourth century, to the siege by the Normans in 885, to the Fifteenth and Sixteenth centuries and remains of forts built during the French revolution when the state took over property of the church.

Alme Clémence, inspector of the commission of Old Paris, revealed that the workmen had uncovered the floor of a chapel built in the Fourth century, when Paris was a few mud houses huddled on an island in the Seine in a swampy, uninviting but strategic valley. This chapel was called St. John the Baptist, and its early history is lost in the obscurity of the ancient Gallic town, which was first mentioned in Caesar's Commentaries as Lutetia.

A Family Affair

Marriage, in Japan, is more than a contract between the two parties who are to live together. In Japan, the marriage was held in the presence of the bride and groom, the whole family and most of the neighbors. Japanese people start when they leave off at the altar, and Japanese people with every member of the family and many other people who are not even related to the bride and groom.

World's Youngest Mayor Guest of LaGuardia and New York

Municipal budgets and such were discussed by the mayor of the world's largest city and world's youngest mayor when Mayor LaGuardia of New York played host to 17-year-old Mayor Daniel Kampen of Boys Town recently. Left to right above are LaGuardia, Kampen and Father Flanagan, founder and director of Boys Town.

THE world's youngest mayor visited New York recently as official guest of the mayor of the world's largest city—and they talked about budgets.

Daniel Kampen, Mayor of Boys Town, Mo., is only 17 and the youngest mayor of a real city in the world. As mayor of New York, Fiorello LaGuardia controls the largest municipal budget in the world.

After being locked in private conference in LaGuardia's office for some fifteen minutes, the mayor of New York admitted newspapermen and photographers.

"Mayor Kampen and I have exchanged credentials," LaGuardia said. "We've decided this job of being mayor isn't all it's cracked up to be."

"You said it," chimed in the youthful Kampen.

Going to New York to take part in a national radio broadcast, the Mayor of Boys Town and Father Flanagan, founder and director of the nationally famous home for homeless boys, there were accorded all the courtesies and honors extended by the metropolis only to world celebrities. They were met at the train by Mayor LaGuardia's official motor cavalcade with smartly uniformed motorcycle officers flanking all sides. With screaming sirens clearing their way through the heavy New York traffic, they were whisked to the city hall for the big public reception.

While the two mayors posed for a battery of photographers, Father Flanagan stood in the background smiling gently, his eyes serious and kindly. He founded Boys Town, ten miles west of Omaha in 1917. Since then 4,466 homeless boys of all races, colors and creeds—from the 48 states of the union have been made good citizens there.

Besieged by reporters for a luxury of his famous home he said: "No boy is a really bad boy. If you take him off the streets you can stem the tide of crime. No one wants to be a criminal. It's only the lack of opportunity that makes boys criminals."

Breathless before the honors and recognition extended his homeless boys by the great American metropolis, Father Flanagan told newspapermen how Boys Town began 19 years ago with five boys, how today present Boys Town with its 360 acres of fine farm land and modern buildings was his dream come true. With pride he showed reporters a recent letter written him by J. Edgar Hoover, head of the nation's G-Men.

Hoover wrote: "If Boys Town were just financially able to care for all the boys that need its help, crime would be dealt one of the most effective and crushing blows I can imagine."

While in New York, young Kampen was offered an opportunity to attend an eastern preparatory school, a scholarship in an eastern college and a career. He turned them down with thanks, and a smile.

"Thank you very much," he said, "but I think I'll go back with Father Flanagan!"

"TRUTH" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, January 24, 1937.

The Golden Text is, "The Lord is good; his mercy is everlasting; and his truth endureth to all generations." (Psalms 100:5).

The citations from the Bible include the following passages: "Give ear, O ye heavens, and I will speak; and hear, O earth, the words of my mouth. He is the Rock, his work is perfect: for all his ways are judgment: a God of truth and without iniquity, just and right is he." (Deut. 32:1, 4).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following selections from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Spirit, Life, Truth, Love, combine as one—and are the Scriptural names for God. Not materially but spiritually we know Him as divine Mind, as Life, Truth, and Love. We shall obey and adore in proportion as we apprehend the divine nature and love Him understandingly; warping no more over the corporeality, but rejoicing in the assurance of our God." (P. 276:12-14, 140: 7-12).

First Wagon to Cross Rockies

On April 2, 1836, a Missouri river steamer stopped at Jefferson city, Mo., having on board Dr. Marcus Whitman, Rev. Henry H. Spalding, and their wives, who were en route to establish a mission among the Indians of Oregon. Joined at Liberty, Mo., by W. H. Gray, they purchased wagons, pack animals, cattle and provisions and began their long and perilous overland journey. The ladies were the first white women to cross the American continent. Whitman took with him, as far as Fort Boise, the first wheeled vehicle to surmount the Rockies and thus led the way for the development of nation-wide communication. The party reached Fort Walla Walla, on the Columbia, on September 2—exactly five months after their stop at Jefferson City.

Roquefort Streets Rise

Against Sides of Cliff

The little town of Roquefort, in southeastern France, made famous by cheese, is also attractive because of its quaint and picturesque beauty. Its half-dozen narrow streets rise tier upon tier against the sides of a cliff. Apparently resting against the cliff are the long houses, four or five stories high, with quaint gables, dormer windows and brightly colored tile roofs. The tiny village church, shaped like a cross, with the town clock in its steeple, is a favorite stopping place for the many visitors.

Above the buildings, in the side of the cliff, are entrances to the caves where the famous cheese is cured. The massive grottoes have been made symmetrical by the villagers. Large stone columns have been hewn out of the stone to support the curved rock ceilings, so that, looking down the pathway, one sees a succession of graceful arches and lines of stone pillars, medieval in appearance.

Westernmost Capital in Europe

Lisbon, the capital of Portugal, lies on the River Tagus, near its entrance to the Atlantic ocean. It is the westernmost capital in Europe and is built in a succession of terraces up the sides of a range of low hills. It fronts the river and the view from the water of its white houses and its numerous parks and gardens is comparable in beauty with the approach of Naples or Constantinople, by sea. At the beginning of the Nineteenth century the French invasion, followed by the removal of the court to Rio de Janeiro, the Peninsular war, the loss of Brazil and a period of revolution and dynastic trouble, resulted in the utter decadence of the city, from which slight signs of recovery first became noticeable after 1850.—Philadelphia Record.

Forum Hears Travel Talk

At the Fortnightly Forum Sunday evening a very good audience met to hear George Coleman of Brunswick, who came of his recent trip to Germany and other countries of Europe. Coleman went as a delegate to the Poultry Congress in Berlin and enjoyed an exceptional opportunity to travel extensively and learn a great deal about conditions in Germany and the rest of Europe. In a very easy and pleasant manner he told of his trip to France and Switzerland, Germany and then Holland, England. His first-hand observations upon conditions in Europe and his visit to the Olympic were of special interest.
